BRITISH SQUADRON SAILS FOR LISBON

BRAVE QUEEN WOULD GIVE HER LIFE FOR SON

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 1.—The King of Portugal and the Crown Prince have been assassinated. The second son is slightly injured and the Queen unhurt.

The royal family were in a carriage, driving to the palace. At the corner of the Plaza de Comercio a band of men fired a volley at them with carbines. The King and the Crown Prince were each shot three times, both dying soon after. The Queen made a futile effort to protect the Prince. The police killed two of the assassins and one committed suicide. (Continued on Page 2)

LOCAL PORTUGUESE MOURN ROYALTY

Special Service is to Be Held at the Roman Catholic Cathedral.

A special service will be held next Thursday morning at the Catholic church, in memory of the untimely death of King Carlos I and Crown Prince Louis Philippe of Portugal. It is expected that the Right Reverend Bishop da Silva will officiate at this service.

Since the sad news was received the local Portuguese have flocked to the Portuguese Consulate. Consul General Canavarro in his shocked condition responded courteously to many inquiries who were anxious to learn the particulars of the assassination.

The flag of the Portuguese Consulate General is half masted today and the local Portuguese societies and associations have, through their officers, placed their flags at half mast. The portraits of the late king and queen of Portugal have been decorated and are hanging in the office of Consul Canavarro.

The hotly contested case of Harb Hak Sae versus Pak Sung Kwon, Kim Sung Kwon and Yee Nal Soo was finally decided this morning by an opinion handed down by the Supreme Court, reversing the trial judge in his order granting a new trial and vacating the original judgment.

PARTNERSHIP FUNDS HAVE DISAPPEARED

Grand Jury Looking Into Receivership Of Fullerton

The Territorial Grand Jury is at present investigating a matter growing out of the old case of E. C. Rowe vs. Stanley Stephenson, which was a row about a partnership. As far back as 1902 Judge Gear appointed Jas. E. Fullerton as receiver to take charge of the affairs of the partnership. This Fullerton did. It appears, however, that he collected a sum of money, about $245, which was due to the firm on various accounts, and this sum is missing. Fullerton left the Territory a couple of years ago. He does not, however, seem to have left the money behind him, nor any instructions in regard to it. Fullerton's books have been located in charge of a local business man, and they are said to show that the money was collected by Fullerton.

A short time ago an order was issued from the Circuit Court ordering that the moneys belonging to the partnership should be paid out to Rowe and Stephenson, each to receive an equal share thereof, and it was then that it was found that there was no money to divide. When this discovery was made the matter was referred to the Grand Jury, which has already issued subpoenas for witnesses to attend its next meeting.

AIR CUSHIONS FOR NUUANU PIPE LINE

Arrangements Provided to Prevent the End from Blowing Out.

What would happen if the end of the pipe line leading down from the Nuuanu dam reservoir should blow out?

That is a question which might be of considerable interest to those whose homes happen to be in the way. But the end of the pipe is not going to blow out. That is a matter which has been provided for—but only just now provided for.

Today Superintendent of Public Works Campbell is advertising for bids for the supplying to the department of fittings, valves, air chambers and air cushions for the power-house end of the famous "lock-bar" pipe, with a view to preventing any contingency such as is indicated in the above question.

Speaking of the matter this morning, Mr. Campbell said that when water is turned into the two miles of pipe extending between the dam and the power house, there will be a dead weight of over $2000 tons of water in the pipe. This is when the water is not moving. When it is moving, this weight is greatly increased by the momentum. The pressure in this case

Treasurer Campbell May Quit

A. J. Campbell very probably will not be Treasurer of the Territory after next April. That is the feeling around the Government offices.

Mr. Campbell's commission, under which he now holds office, expires in April. It is believed that he does not stand any too solidly with the Governor, and that there is pretty strong reason for supposing that he will not be re-appointed by Governor Frazier after the expiration of his term. It is known that when the Governor took office, he offered the position of Treasurer to another man in preference to Campbell, but that the other man refused to accept.

But there is still another ground for believing that Campbell will go out of office in April. This is the fact that his friends are strongly opposed to his retaining the position after the expiration of his present term, and are doing all they can to induce him to promise to give up the Treasuryship in April.

The tax office investigation, which concerns Campbell and Holt particularly, is still under way, and no decision has been announced yet by either Governor Frazier or Secretary Mott-Smith. There are still other witnesses to be examined.

Miss Ella Hartnell, daughter of a California oil baron, secretly married to Andrew M. Lockbridge in New York.

 would be represented by the formula of the weight divided by gravity, multiplied by 7. This would give a pressure of 425 tons per square inch in case the valves were closed instantaneously. Such a pressure, of course, would be sufficient to blow the pipe to bits in an instant.

To obviate this, the Superintendent proposes to install two air chambers, in which the elastic air will take up this immense force and reduce it to the static pressure of 350 pounds per square inch. There will be an additional load of 50 pounds per square inch, which must also be taken into account.

"This pipe line," said Mr. Campbell this morning, "is the longest one of which I have been able to find any record."

Regarding the reported "mush-pile" in the dam itself, the Superintendent states that it no longer exists, having been all drained out. "We dug a trench," he said, "and drained the water out. Dirt was shoveled on top to force the water out by its weight. A stick thrust down into the spot now shows that the place is solidifying."

WHY

does a man appoint an Executor in his will to carry out his wishes? Why does he secure a Guardian for his children?

Because the welfare of his children is the most important thing in the world to him.

Then why not appoint for Executor or Guardian a responsible party with a reputation?

DISPATCH GETS OFF HARBOR REEF

Ran Aground Yesterday,
Pulled Herself Off
This Morning

While attempting to enter the harbor at about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, the new American-Hawaiian steamer Dispatch, which will be put on the inter-island sugar run, ran aground on the reef on the Ewa side of the channel at a point between the old lighthouse and the new lighthouse, and it was not until 4 o'clock this morning at high tide that the vessel was able to be pulled off.

Considerable excitement was caused when it was announced that a vessel was aground in the harbor yesterday morning, and Captain Haglund of the Inter-Island Company went out to see if it was one of his vessels, and to offer aid. This he did, but Captain Kokerwitz of the Dispatch was so confident that he could get his boat off that he would not make any offers to the would-be helpers.

Yesterday he placed a large anchor with sixty fathoms of cable behind the vessel, and by means of the steam donkey pulled her off this morning with little trouble. It is a common custom here that all boats outside of the inter-island boats lie outside of the harbor if they arrive here after sunset. This is done on account of the quarantine regulations. Captain Kokerwitz claims that he is sailing under a coastwise license, and, for that reason thought nothing of entering the harbor at night. He has been here several times before and knew the old channel, but was not aware that the position of the lighthouse had been changed, although the "Notice to Mariners" appeared in Frisco some time before he sailed for this port.

Captain Kokerwitz stated last evening that he felt assured that he would be able to get his vessel off the reef without any trouble and this proved so. "I was satisfied that I could come into the harbor with perfect safety the other night," he said, "for I have been here several times before. I also was aware of the regulations concerning quarantine, but thought I could come inside and lay alongside the quarantine wharf until morning. I entered the harbor on slow speed, and just a second or two before we struck I ordered the engines stopped altogether, so when the nose of the boat slid up on the reef, it was done so gently that very little, if any, damage could have been done. I think the men who allow that place to go without an additional light where the old lighthouse formerly was, should be handed a severe roast. A danger light should be placed at the point where the old light was, so that all such accidents would be avoided."

All Parties Unite To Save Portugal And Young King

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 3.—A coalition Cabinet has been formed with Admiral Ferreira as Premier to conduct the affairs of the country. Premier Franco retires in order to assure the greatest unity.

King Manuel II, the young ruler, has placed himself in the hands of his Ministers, admitting that he is without experience in the affairs of government.

Quiet prevails throughout the city and country.

King Manuel, the newly proclaimed King of Portugal, is the second and only surviving son of the late King Charles. He was born in 1889, and previous to his ascending the throne was known as Prince Manuel, Duke of Beja.

In speaking of the new King this morning Count Canavarro said that he hardly expected a regency, as the young King is over eighteen years of age. Not much is known of his general characteristics except that he has been considered a less energetic young man than the Crown Prince Philippe, who was killed with his father. The Crown Prince was a vigorous type.

Count Canavarro in speaking of conditions in Portugal stated that he could hardly size up the situation from the meager details of the dispatches. Portugal has been undergoing a severe crisis of much the same character that is being experienced in all the countries of the world. In the breaking up of the old parties, the Republicans have taken advantage of the conditions to gain some of their points, and the anarchists have apparently stepped in with their terrible work. That the King should be attacked by the anarchists is not surprising, as Barcelona is recognized as the hot-bed of anarchy.

"King Carlos was something of the Roosevelt character," said Count Canavarro, "and was doing splendid work in handling the disturbed conditions. He was a very brave man, and I feel certain that he was without a guard at the time he was shot. This act did not come from the people. The Portuguese are not a murderous people. It is clearly the work of anarchists arousing some excited fanatics to a horrible deed."

"The young King takes his title from one of our most honored sovereigns."
